What better time to travel Europe than during the summer months? From the United Kingdom to Slovenia through Luxembourg, Europe abounds with treasures, from architectural buildings to delicious culinary specialties. This guide will provide you with the best exhibitions to see this summer on the old continent.

If you're planning to swim in the Adriatic Sea, make sure to visit Ljubljana and the Galerija Fotografija. The Slovenian artist, Matjaž Tančič, winner of the World Photography Organization 3D Award in 2013, is exhibiting a series of more than 100 portraits of North Korean citizens. From there, Switzerland will delight you with its beautiful landscapes, and a show highlighting Wilfredo Lam and his influential stay in Italy at the Galerie Gmurzynska in St. Moritz. Further south, Grimaldi Forum in Monaco is bringing together 150 major artworks by Russian avant-garde artists in the exhibition "From Chagall to Malevich."

You can't come all the way here and skip France. As part of the 50th anniversary of Andy Warhol's meeting with The Velvet Underground, the Centre Pompidou-Metz presents "Warhol Underground." This exhibition highlights the influence of the New York music scene on the artist's work before he became their producer. Visitors will be able to walk through a recreation of The Factory, where all the artists, musicians, and their friends hung out and experimented with art and music. Continue your trip to Luxembourg, established on the UNESCO World Heritage List in 1994, to explore the fortifications and the Nosbaum Reding gallery, where Jens Wolf is presenting his geometric abstract artworks.

If photography is your cup of tea, don't hesitate to cross the Channel to discover Raymond Cauchetier's "New Wave" in London. The exhibition at James Hyman Gallery is showcasing stills he took on French film sets like "Breathless" or "Jules and Jim." Don't leave the city without stopping by Flowers gallery, where British artists, such as John Bellamy, Adam Dant, or Alison Watt, are exploring the human form over the past thirty years.

No matter how many cities you visit in Europe this summer, there will always be an exhibition to enjoy during your trip.
